

Camus' Dust - synopsis

Every dog has his day, but some days are just too damn long ...

John gets fired from his job.
His car gets impounded.
His girlfriend leaves him for another guy.
And his friends turn their backs ...

Then when all that's left is his dog Camus, the dog dies.
After hitting bottom an inner voice tells John he needs to spread Camus' ashes in Death Valley as a last gesture to his old dog, and to set his own spirit free.

After all his Los Angeles friends are "unable" to help him drive to the desert John meets his former work colleague from some long ago job, Jordan, who offers him a ride to that barren destination.

A long road trip turns into a journey of the soul for all concerned.

© Roy Eisenstein 2009
® WGA # 1372854